Parental Control®
Can Improve Your Life
By: Christian Luu

In today's generation, having control over what your children do on the web is harder than ever. Kids are constantly browsing the internet and can easily be led to malicious websites. We allowed 30 families to test out Parental Control® and this is what they had to say about our product.

Why Parental Control®?

Children today are very vulnerable on the internet. If they see an ad that interests them, they would click on it and it could potentially lead to a website that could leak information or an explicit website that children should not see. Recently, there was a breakout of youtube videos with a character named "Momo" that would appear at the end of children videos telling the kids to hurt themselves or others, or else Momo would kill them. When I was younger I would often see ads that would say "Click to win a free iPad". I clicked on it and often led me to suspicious websites, one that gave me a virus. With our software, we will prevent all of these events from ever occurring in your life.

The Benefits of Having Parental Control®

Out of the 30 families that used our product over the last year, 24 of them were happily able to say that our software has helped their family be more engaged together and not glued to their phones. One of the parents, Cheryl Kapchan, explained that Parental Control® has "made my life so much easier. I can't control Angus online, but now I am able to make sure he is always safe while surfing the web." A handful of parents have also told that our software was able to help prevent their children from stumbling into explicit content and was quickly able to block viruses from pop-up advertisements.
